

Decisive Indecision

you are the most indecisive person i have ever known you can't decide to make up your mind you'd rather walk around with the demons inside meet for lunch never on time she's constantly running behind she can paint i can write she only runs i only bike chorus

if i could somehow get you to see what you're constantly doing to me your ways seem so strange or is my mind seeming to play-ay-ay those games i failed to say your decisive indecision is in no way gonna turn me away when i wake up you sleep in its my rum and coke to your bottle of gin the weather is so sunny today you only see the rain a mile away what i consider sacred mine you consider a waste of time when i come home all drunk and alive you only want to stay inside and

chorus

watch the rain cause you like the way the drops all seem to arrange the perfect little picture today its the shit that you do i guess that's why i'm fallin for a pretty little girl like you